

Notes: No concerns below the very hard Feb 7th ice crust. Much of the snow above is not necessarily faceted but it remains weak. The warm sunny days and clear cold nights have kept the new snow from bonding to itself. No stability concerns now until a slab forms on top. Perhaps a few wind slabs could be resting on this weak snow and would be unstable.